Every child should own a hundred books by the age of five. To that end, Book Dash gathers creative volunteers to create new African storybooks that anyone can freely print, translate and distribute. Then we work with partners to give those books to preschool children to own.

How do you eat?

Miri likes to crunch her toast.

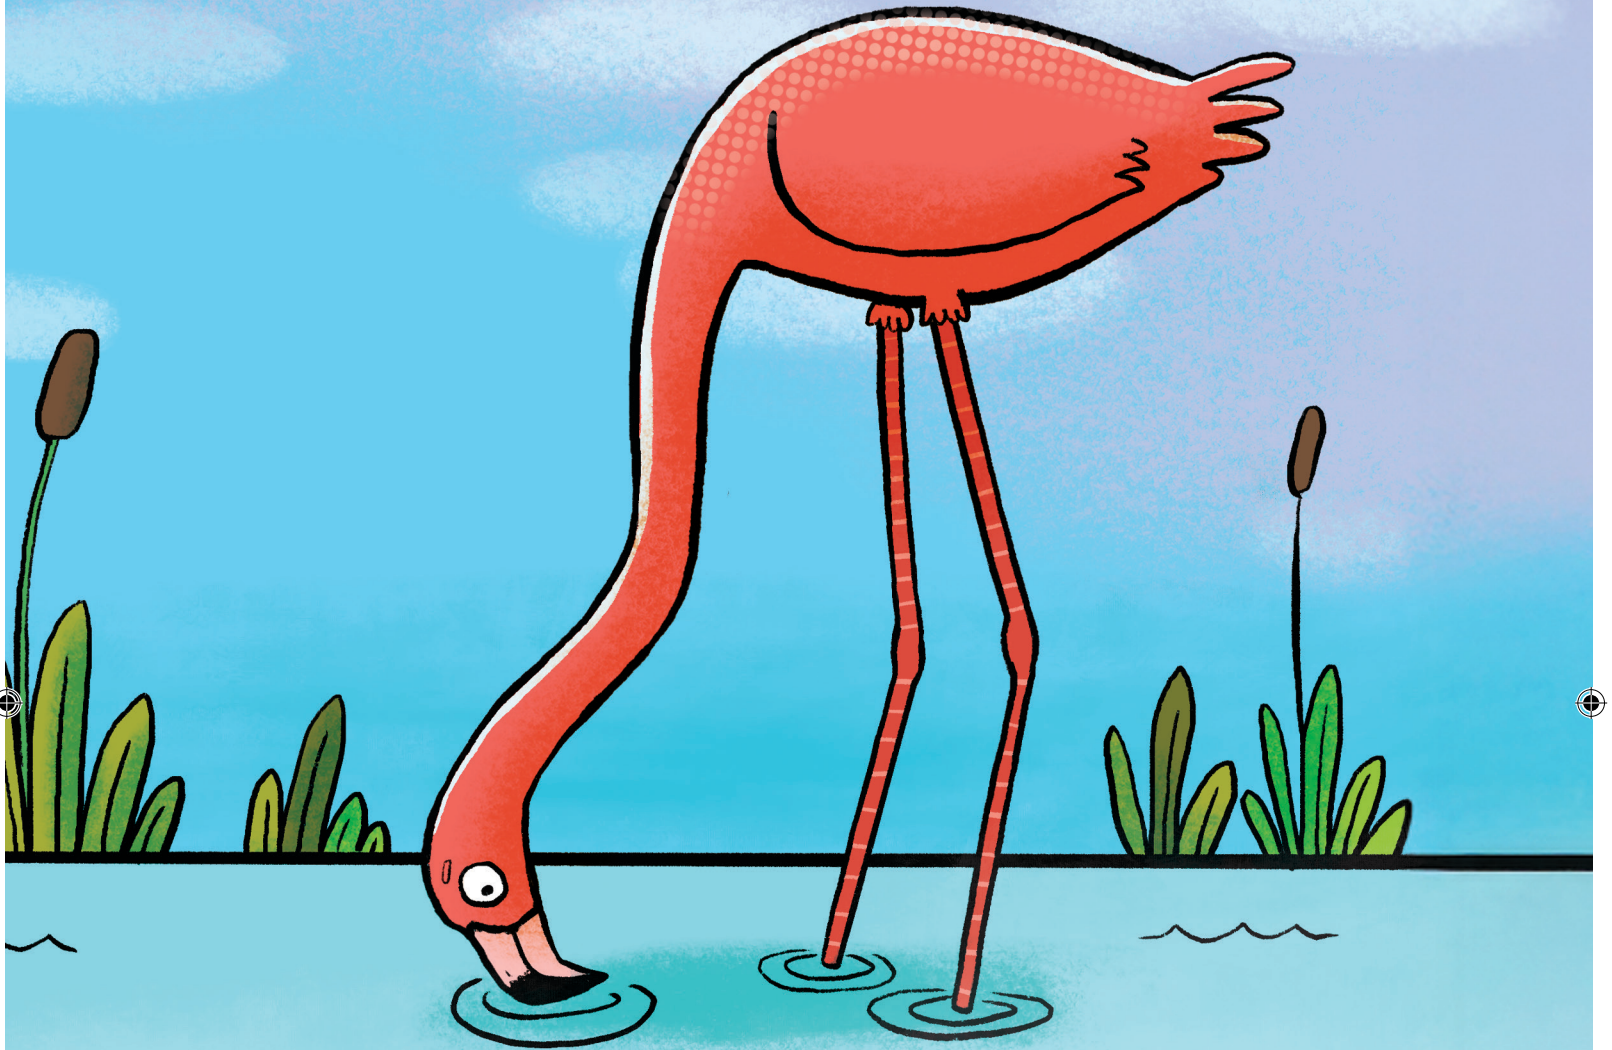

*How do you eat,
flamingo?*

I eat upside down! I trap
shrimp in my beak.

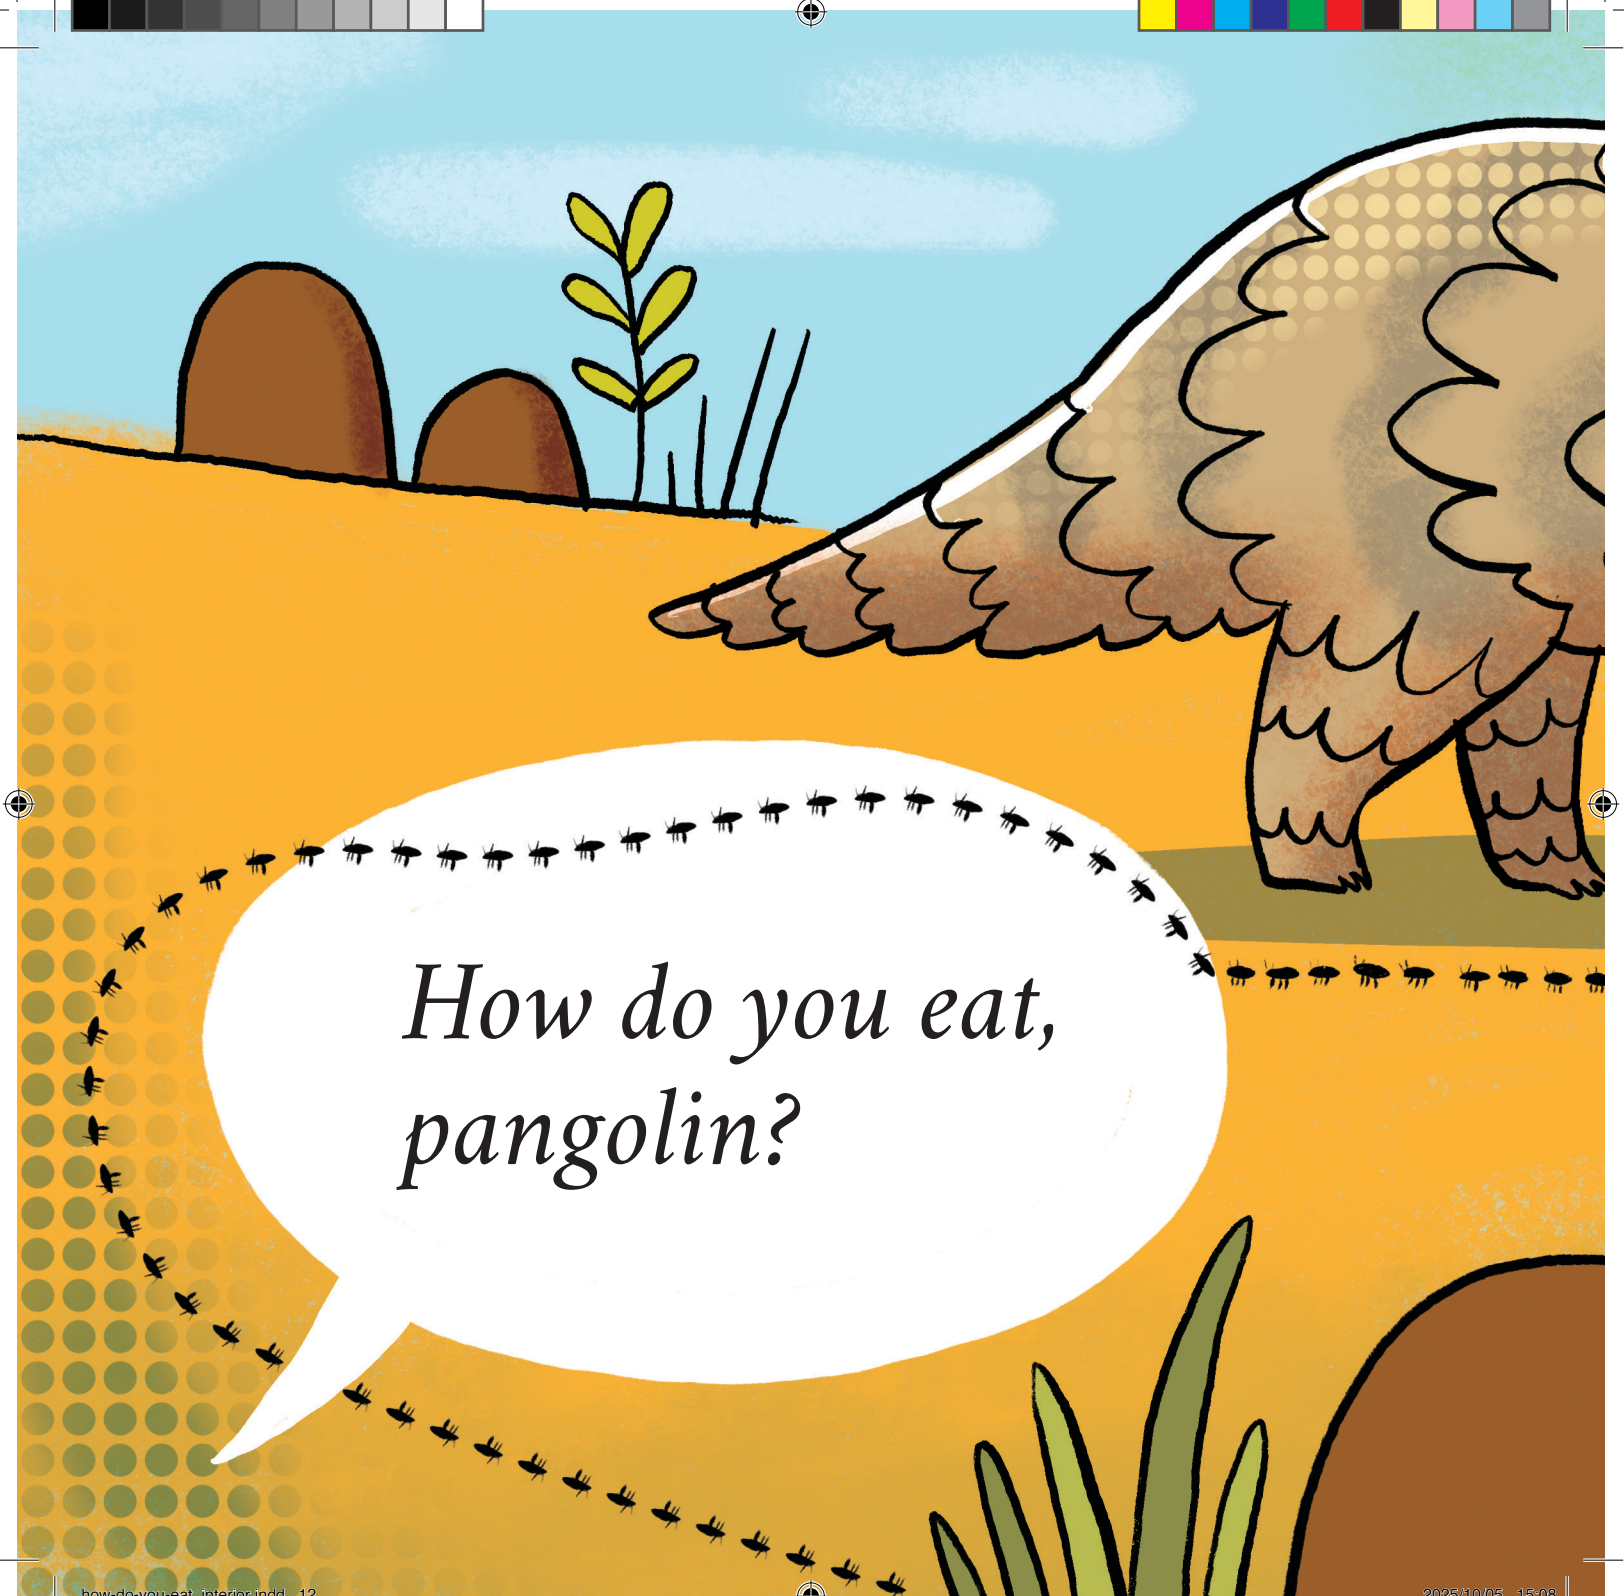

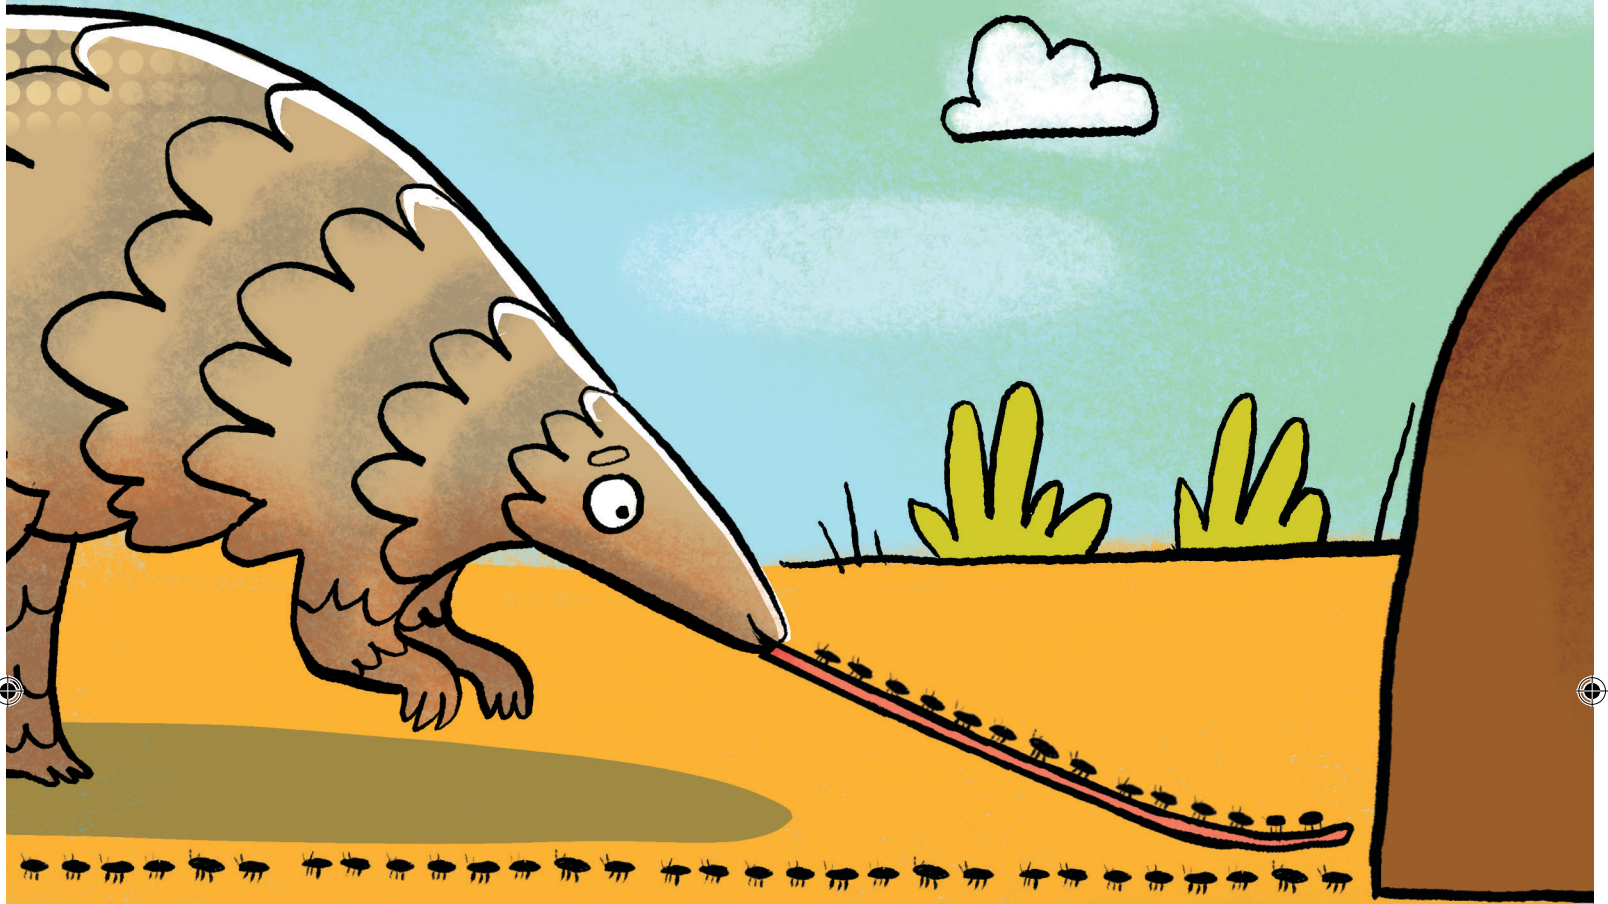

*How do you eat,
dung beetle?*

I roll dung into a ball. I chew the wet
bits and my babies
munch the grass.

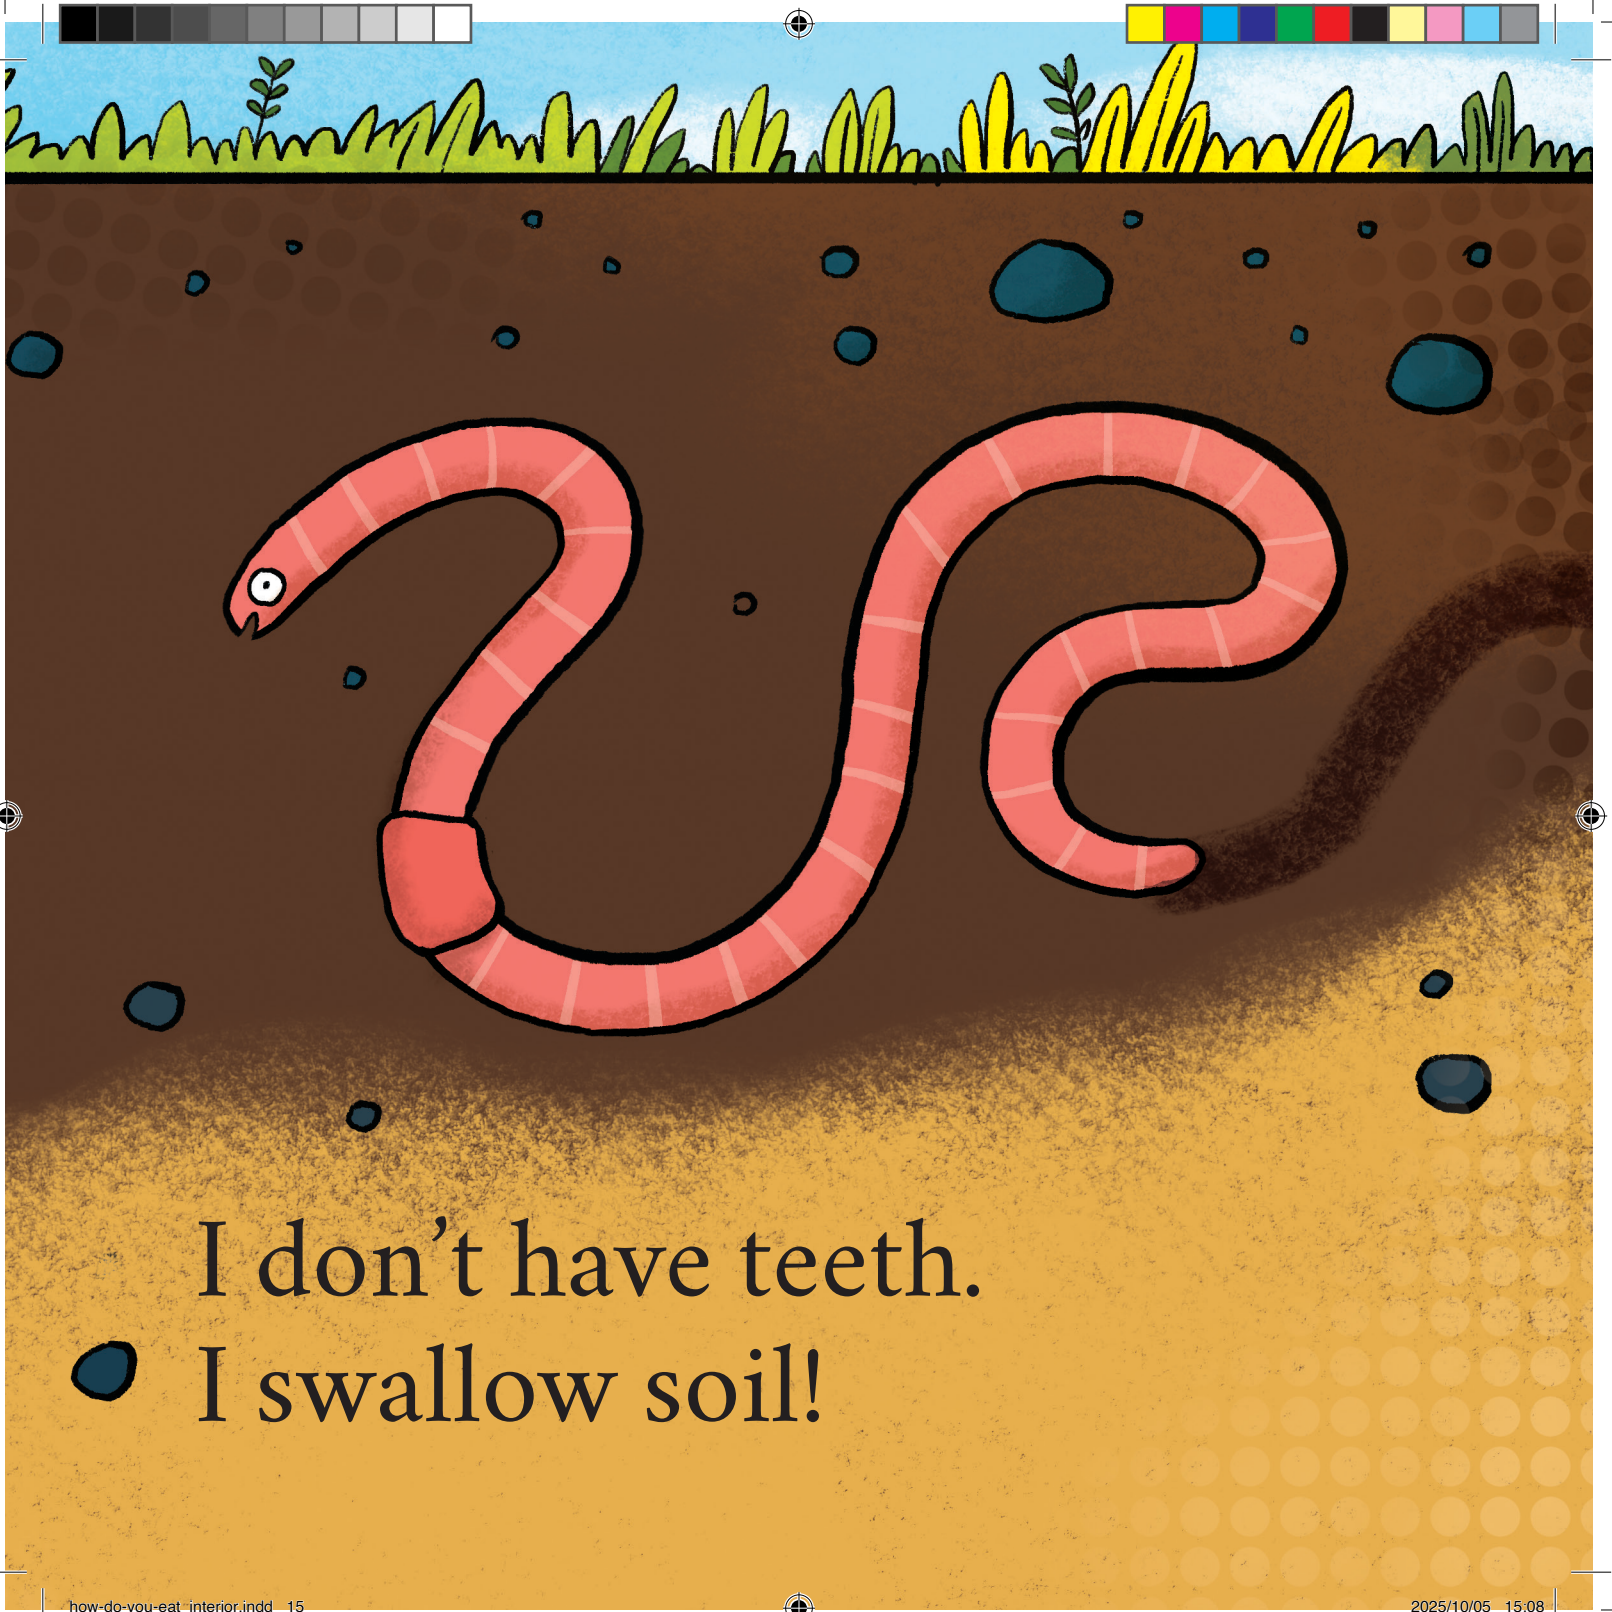

I lick up ants with my long,
sticky tongue.

*How do you eat,
earthworm?*

I don't have teeth.
I swallow soil!

*How do you eat,
tickbird?*

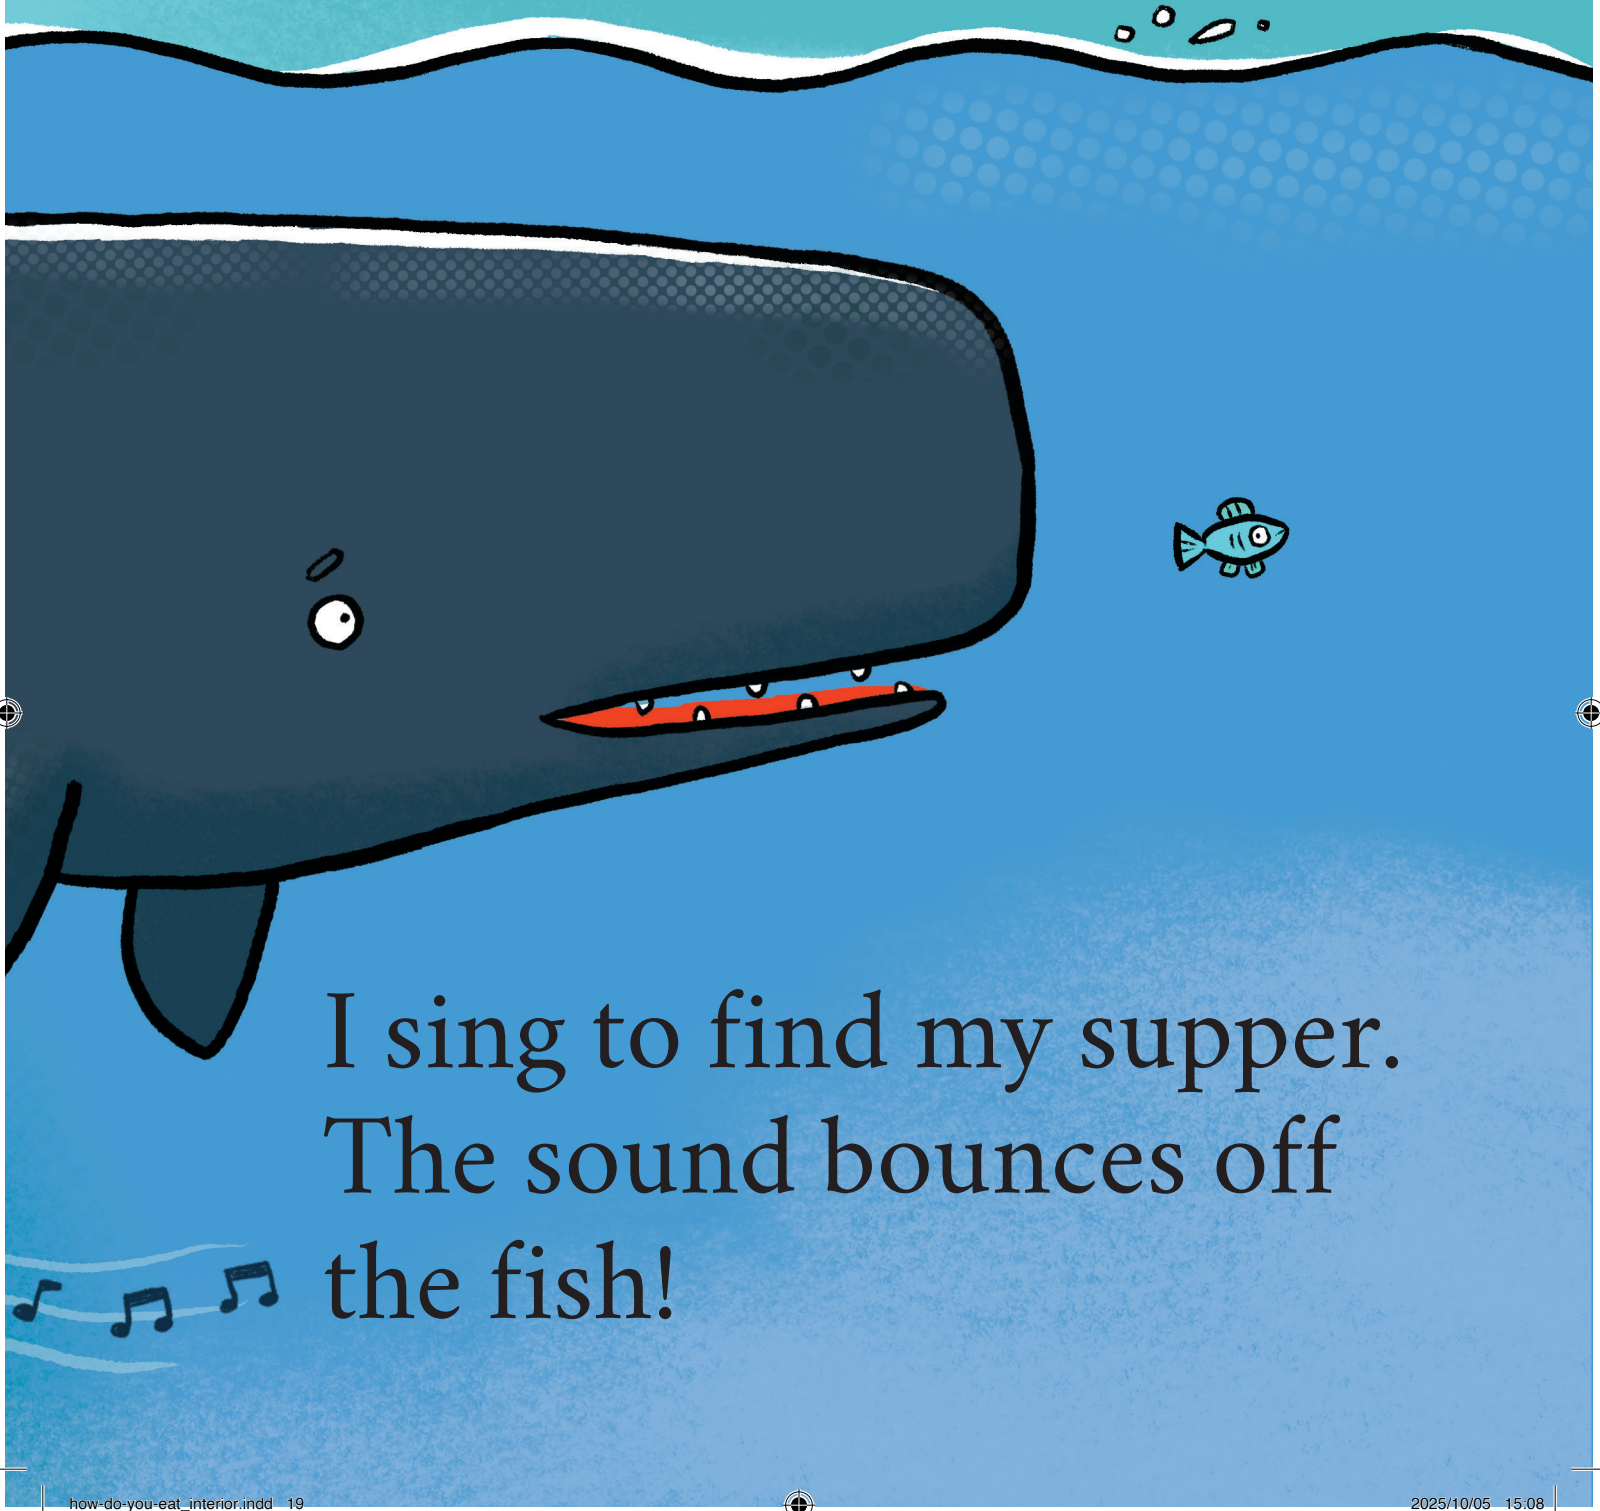

I ride on animals
and snack on their
ticks and earwax.

*How do you eat,
whale?*

I sing to find my supper.
The sound bounces off
the fish!

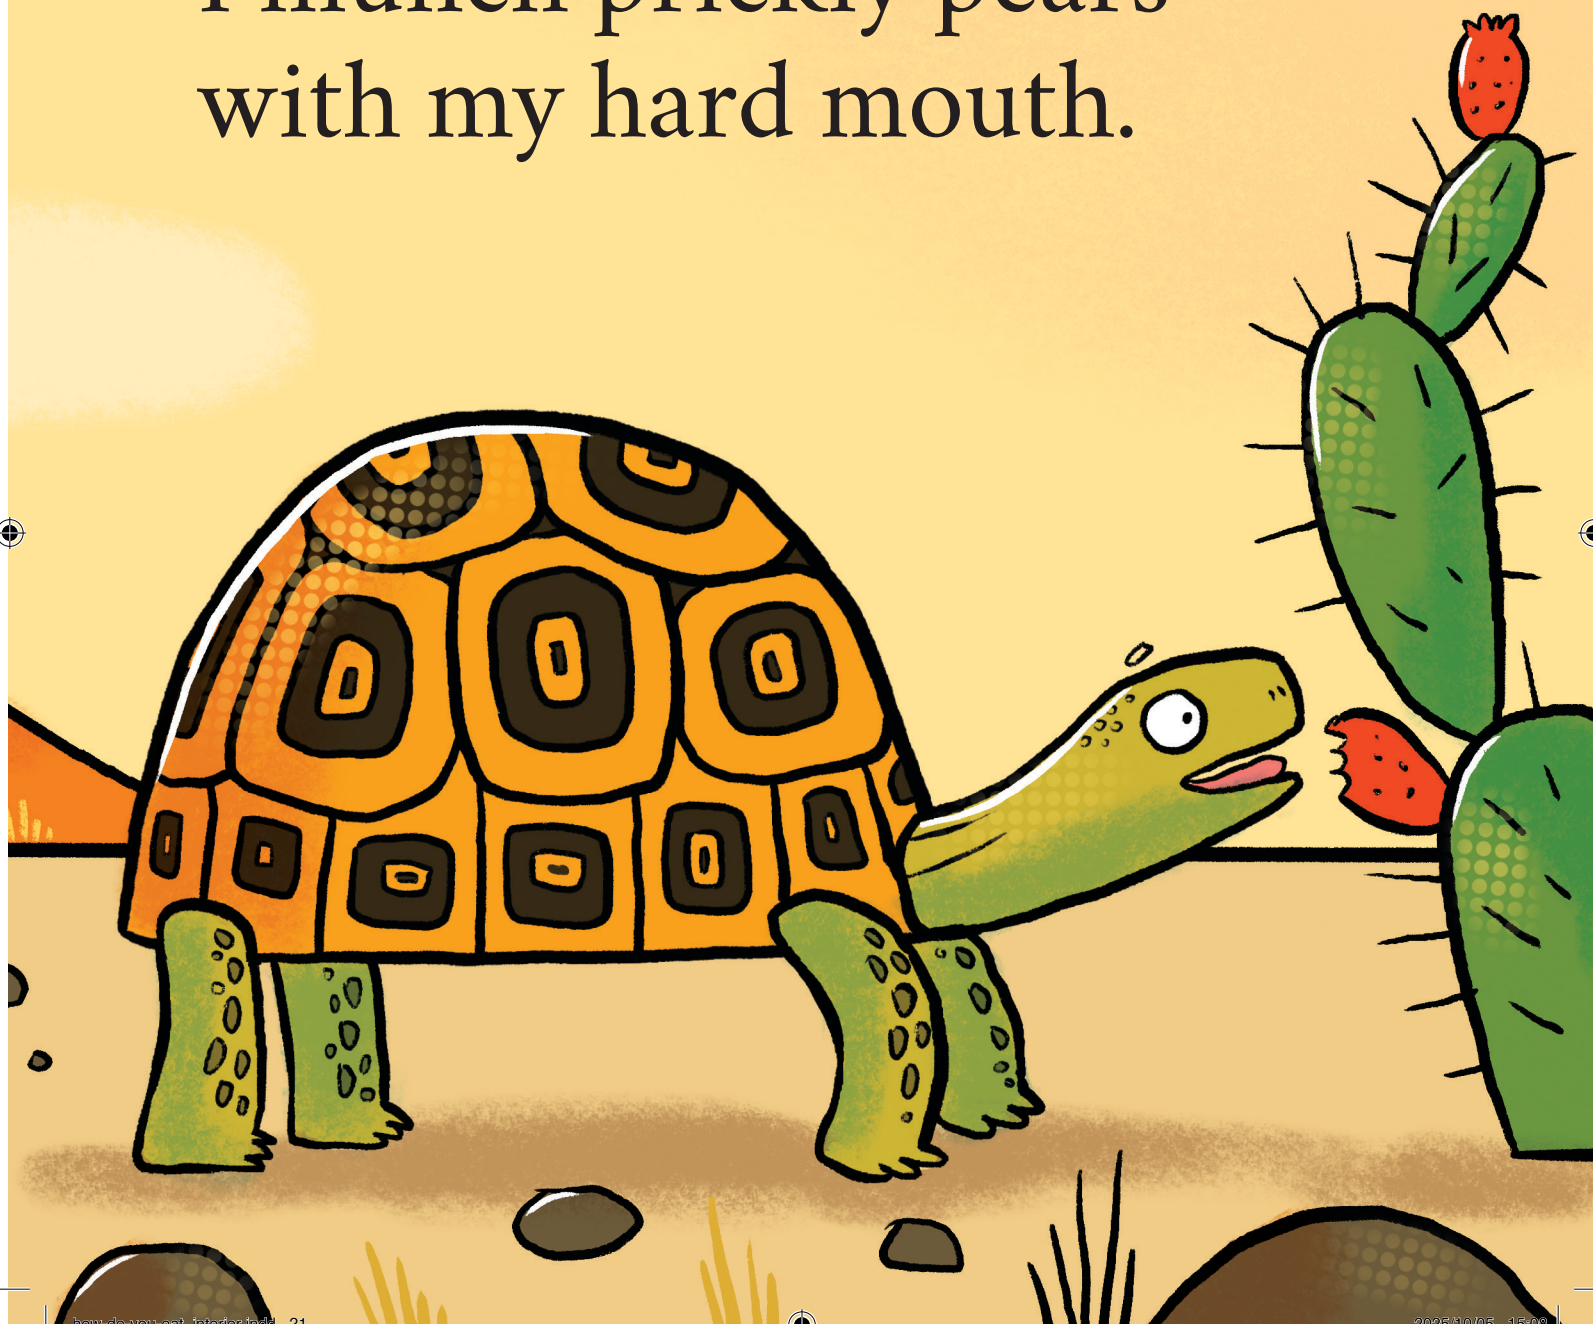

*How do you eat,
tortoise?*

I munch prickly pears
with my hard mouth.

*How do you eat,
secretary bird?*

I stomp on snakes. I slurp
them up!

*How do you eat,
giraffe?*

I stretch my neck and grab
the highest leaves.

*How do you eat,
ostrich?*

I swallow little stones to break up my food.

Miri, what is the best way to eat?

Oh, she's too busy to chat!

Nibble! Chew! Munch! Gobble! Slurp! Nibble! Chew! Munch! Gobble! Slurp!

BURP!

Excuse me!
