I Hate Winter

This book belongs to

bookdash.org

Every child should own a hundred books by the age of five. To that end, Book Dash gathers creative volunteers to create new African storybooks that anyone can freely print, translate and distribute. Then we work with partners to give those books to preschool children to own.

I Hate Winter

Kristien Potgieter · Linta Anish · Sabelo Shabangu

On an icy winter morning, Thembeke wakes up dreaming of the summer sun.

“Time to get dressed, Thembeke!” says uBaba.

“I hate being cold,”

Thembeke grumbles. “When will it be warm again, Baba?”

“When spring comes.”

“But I want to wear flip-flops so I can wiggle my toes,”

Thembeke moans, putting on her boots.

“I want to swim in the pool with my friends today.”

“I want to eat ice cream
now, Baba!”

Outside, the wind is freezing. “Brrrrr!”

“I want to r-r-ride my b-b-bicycle,”
Thembeke says, her teeth chattering.

Thembeka angrily crosses her arms.

“I hate winter!”

Soon they arrive at uGogo's house.
Thembeke is still feeling cold and cross.
Then she sniffs the air.

What's that smell?

That wonderful, amazing,
mouth-watering smell?

“I guess I’ll try some...”
Thembeke says doubtfully.

make it in winter.”

uGogo serves them

uGogo and uBaba look at Thembeke as she lifts her spoon to her mouth...

What will she think?

“Mmmmm”.

She has never tasted anything so delicious.
The soup warms her up from the inside out.

“I love winter!”
