

Book Dash Contributor Agreement

Explanation

When you participate in any way in a Book Dash, you help create intellectual property that belongs to you: stories, images, translations and more. Legally, you own the copyright in your contribution, but it would often be impossible to say where your contribution ends and another participant's begins. All participants sign this simple agreement to open-license our contributions using a Creative Commons Attribution licence. You can find out more about Creative Commons licences at <https://creativecommons.org/licenses>.

Your contribution is everything you bring or produce on the day (the books and all their component parts). This way, others can re-use what we make (for instance by printing our books or translating them into other languages), as long as they give credit to the Book Dash participants involved. The Book Dash organisers will make the electronic files you help create available online for other projects to share, adapt and reproduce.

If you are under 18 must get your parent or guardian to sign to show consent to this agreement.

Agreement

Full name _____

Email address _____

Phone number _____

Book Dash location _____

Book Dash date _____

By participating in this Book Dash, I (named above) licence my contribution under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 Licence (<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/>).

I have the right to licence my contribution under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 Licence. I do not require anyone else's permission to grant this licence.

I understand that this licence means anyone is free to share (copy and redistribute the material in any medium or format) and adapt (remix, transform, and build upon the material) my contribution for any purpose, even commercially and I cannot revoke these freedoms.

Signature

Date